Virginia National Golf Club Introduces Golf Tournament Web Service

SPRINGFIELD, VA--(March 15, 2005) TournEvents.com has established a golf course web site-based service to aid golf tournament sales to charity and other organizations. Golf courses may now easily place fully-featured golf tournament management web sites directly on their own web sites. A demonstration of this capability can be found online at <http://www.virginianational.com/tournaments.cfm>.

"My customers can't stop raving about our golf tournament web site service," says Cliff Boyd, owner of Virginia National Golf Club. "By offering free golf tournament web sites, we collect email addresses of tournament golfers; increase tournament sales; and drive more golfers to our web site."

"By adding one line of code to their web site, golf courses may now offer free golf tournament web sites to their customers," said Topper Smith. "Just like golf courses place the latest weather forecast on their web site, we provide a simple solution; to embed all the online tools necessary for golf course customers to promote, organize, and manage a successful event."

Established in May 2001, TournEvents.com is the internet's only free, fully-featured golf tournament promotional, organizational and managerial web site system and provides over 1,000 unique golf tournament web sites annually.
